

What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 27 Nov 2018 01:59

how to screenshot on windows

Found this truck of unknown origin, I guess somebody might know.

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by Nobleco - 27 Nov 2018 06:29

Anything on the bottom or anywhere else that may show a makers mark or number/letter?

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 27 Nov 2018 15:21

Sadly I do not 'yet' own this item so cannot lift it up to find out 🙄

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by Nobleco - 27 Nov 2018 17:00

I see. Looking at the photo I think I see a letter A on the front hub cap so I blew the photo up.

Not sure if I am seeing things or not. Any one know what this might be?

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by RoutemasterNL - 27 Nov 2018 20:09

Arnold?

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by RoutemasterNL - 27 Nov 2018 20:10

Any idea of the size of the vehicle?

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by RoutemasterNL - 28 Nov 2018 06:29

according to a few Dutch collectors, this Bedford truck is made by Brimtoy, the Pocketoy series, number 9/510

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by Krul - 28 Nov 2018 13:11

On the internet at Vintagediecast.co.uk I read the next text:

"BRIMTOY Pocketoy 9/510 Long Wheelbase Truck - Red plastic body with black plastic wheels and radiator. green tinfoil wagon body, clockwork motor with pressed bright metal key - Length 5"/13cm."

On the first picture of this topic the body and wheels look diecast to me.

Regards - Wolter.

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 28 Nov 2018 16:12

Interesting!!

Though to me the toy looks a tad different from the stock images out there,

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 28 Nov 2018 16:19

I think it's Similar to Timpo and made of Tin.

=====

Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 28 Nov 2018 20:38

Found another!

Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 29 Nov 2018 16:55

Maybe swap the beds and tidy up the first truck?

Both appear to have no signs of the clockwork mechanism, must be incomplete.

Re: What is it?

Posted by Andy66 - 01 Dec 2018 10:02

This is interesting & new to me as the Wells Brimtoy Pocket toys I have seen have had tin backs & plastic bodies, many thanks for showing.

=====
Re: What is it?

Posted by karls - 09 Dec 2018 13:59

I googled around and found nothing... But here is a great reference site if you have not seen it on some small UK producers from back then: www.diecastvintagetoy.co.uk/ Those 2 trucks are not there.

=====
Re: What is it?

Posted by 143Madness - 09 Dec 2018 16:07

It's amazing what lies undiscovered sometimes!

Watching these items now.
