And here the carrier. Two of them. One with the original take off rear axle nad one with a self made one. The self made one took a very long time, and it might seem I would have bene better off just buying a repro for 8 euros, but hey, I made this one myself, and that is what counts.

Nicely done on both models and it looks like your homemade take off ramps will do the trick. Nice decaling on all of the models too.
