

Various guessings...

Posted by Corky - 05 Jan 2012 17:56

What's similar in the two groups ?

Who says Corgi is right, but that's not what I want to hear.

Let's go !

Take off wheels (golden jacks) for the ones on the right.

Yes.

But what I wanted to say (I wish I could speak english very well), is what is common to the two groups. I Mean what is identical in both the groups of cars. Not only a thing in one group.

The TR, Austin Healey and MG are all British. They all have bumpers with Bumper Guarda (nerfs) on them. The right they are all four head light cars but not all American Muscle cars but they all have black hoods.

This is a little bit more complicated and more simple in the same time.

I think it's a difficult guessing one !

I'll give, if necessary, another clue this week-end.

Are they all right hand drive?

No. ('Vette is LHD)

Similar thing is only when you group both the three cars. It means that car by car there is nothing common.

It's an open and shut case 🙄

You have to find what is characteristic to both groups.

May be it's harder that I thought.

I can see that they all have black tires and they all have silver or chrome on them somewhere.

Ahhhh, now I know:

Both groups have reference numbers 300, 301 and 302:

Austin Healey = 300

Chevy Corvette = 300

Triumph TR2 = 301

Iso Grifo = 301

MGA Sports = 302

Hillman Hunter = 302

Very Clever. I guess, if you have the models it would not be that hard to put together. I don't have any of them though. 😊

One day, I suddenly realized that the Hillman was numbered 302...

It gave me this game's idea.
